Hyundai Kona Hybrid Review

What We Like

Funky, modern design - those Seamless Horizon Lamps!
Smooth, seamless hybrid powertrain
Good real-world fuel consumption of 17.2km/l
Compliant suspension with a hint of sportiness
Well-equipped with a full suite of driver assists
Spacious and comfortable
Easy to drive

What We Dislike

Wireless Android Auto did not work for me
Engine comes on slightly too easily

Stylish, fuel efficient, space-practical, easy to drive car. `

Been driving the Kona hybrid Elite for 8 months, my previous car was a 2010 Toyota. Why this is a good buy: for a car positioned closer to the "Entry level", this has plenty of features. Automatic tailgate, auto sunroof, adaptive cruise control, lane keep assist, paddle shifters, heated AND ventilated seats for both front passengers, also electric seats for both front seats, hyundai is able to provide these features...

Probably the car best suited for Singapore driving `

Firstly, as much as I would love to have the peace of mind with a Toyota, the Japanese are really struggling with their interiors. The Elite trim of the Kona has all the bells and whistles, with creature comforts that I find hard to live without. The exterior styling, although pretty subjective, is daring and more fun than any other car in this category.

Hyundai technology Keeps improving `

Collected this car last week and I am surprised with Hyundai superb technology as compared with Toyota. The car handling and seamless drive are excellent. Very quiet and agile and responsive. The safety features, infotainment and clusters are well place and user friendly. The interior is full of convenience, the exterior looks unique with curve lights.. However, the best you can get with light foot is 18km/L....
