Dear IO Aidan

As previously mentioned in my email, our fees for carrying out a mechanical inspection of the lorry will be $500/- (excluding gst).

The inspection would involve a static inspection and operational inspection. For the static, checks to the various operating fluids like the brake fluid, engine coolant etc will be carried out along with checking on the tyre condition, steering system and braking system etc.

For the operational test, my colleague will require to drive the lorry for a short distance (within your premise should be fine). This is to check on whether the steering system and braking system of the lorry is in normal working condition.

At the end of the whole process, a written report including photos taken will be forwarded to you.

Best Regards,

Bryan Ang

Dear Bryan,

I would require a quotation from your company for the service as we would need to seek approval for the services. Kindly indicate inside the quotation about the type of inspection, and that a report will be provide after the inspection is conducted.

Unfortunately, the driver has already sent the lorry for repair after the accident. However, the workshop informed that they has only replaced the side mirror, which was the impact point. For the purpose of the inspection, we need to check if the mechanical parts, such as brakes, steering wheel and tyres, are in working condition.

Hope it clarifies. Please feel free to call me at 96182214 for any clarifications. Thanks again.

Our fees to carry out a mechanical inspection of the subject motor lorry is $500/- excluding gst.

Can you also confirm that the motor lorry was impounded immediately after the accident?

My colleague, Mr Nazril will carry out this inspection once approved by your management.

Dear Naz
