This accident happened at the carpark of Waterway Point.

I was parking and had reversed to enter Lot 308. As my car was not straight, I wanted to readjust my car.

As seen in the video footage provided, I had exercised caution and allowed other cars to pass first. I carefully moved forward only when the road was clear. My car was visibly out of the lot and was stationary, but just when I was about to reverse into the lot, a car knocked into the right side of my car.

On the spot, the driver apologized repeatedly and mentioned that while she was at the junction, she was busy checking for traffic coming in from the right and once the road was clear on the right, she turned left immediately. She had failed to check both the right and left side and ensure that it was safe to turn before doing so. The one-way road was also wide enough for her to turn further out without knocking into my car.

Please further note that the driver had also admitted liability in the messages attached.
