I was driving on Kim Seng Road, on the right most lane. I thought this lane allowed for both going straight and turning right. At the junction of Kim Seng Road and Havelock Road, I was heading straight to Outram Road. The car on the next lane (on my left) was turning right at the junction, while I was going straight. I hit my brakes in time. The other car turned right and kept going. I did not feel a bump so I thought there was no physical contact between the cars and I also did not see the other car stopping so I proceeded to drive to my next destination. 10 minutes later after I parked, I checked my car and realised there was a small scratch and small dent on my front bumper and fender. Thus I contacted the Audi service center
