Brief Details.

On 19/11/2022 at about 1130hrs, I was driving my Malaysian-registered vehicle bearing registration no: W9709Y, along Pan-Island Expressway towards Changi Airport together with my colleague to Tampines for a contract job. I was driving along the left-most lane of a 4-lane road at about 60km/hr when suddenly a vehicle in front me had suddenly braked in front of me before the exit of Kallang Way. I immediately applied the brakes of my vehicle but a lorry bearing registration no: YP3089U was unable to brake on time and subsequently, had hit the rear of my vehicle. I immediately checked on my colleague and myself and we both did not sustain any visible injuries.

I alighted my vehicle and made a check on the other party as well as both our vehicles. The other party informed that he did not sustain any visible injuries. My vehicle sustained damages on my rear window, rear bumper, rear brake lights and the hook securing the spare tire at the bottom also came loose. The other party vehicle sustained damages on his front bumper. We both then exchanged personal contact details to lodge our respective police reports and for insurance claims. After the collision, my colleague and myself felt pain in our necks. As such, we will both be proceeding to see a doctor to seek medical assistance.

I would also wish to state that both myself and the other party does not have any in-car camera. I was also unable to remember the lamp post number where the incident happened.
