I was turning out of my office building's ( 19 Keppel Road - Jit Poh building) basement carpark along Cantonment Road, and was heading to Keppel Road towards the direction of Vivo city.

There is a fork road along cantonment road leading towards opposite directions along Keppel road. There are 2 lanes turning left to Keppel Road towards the direction of MCE, and 3 lanes turning right to Keppel Road towards the direction of Vivo City. Both traffic lights were red and all cars heading towards Keppel Road were stationary. There is a yellow box right outside the carpark exit. As I was turning to Keppel Road towards the direction of vivo city, I drove through the long yellow box, past the 2 lanes turning left towards Keppel Road towards the direction of MCE, and headed towards the left most lane turning right to Keppel Road towards the direction of Vivo City. I stopped my car when I reached the left most lane, where I was sure there is ample space between my car and the nearest black van ( GBL 5866Z) on the right. I stopped my car for at least 15s.

The traffic light turned green and the cars at the front of the lanes started moving . At this point I noticed that the black van started to move from a stationary position towards my car. I honked loudly at him, to alert him but to no avail. The black van directly hit my car on the right hand side. At this point, i noticed that the sensors around the Car have all turned red. Up til this point, I was pressing on the brake lever. So I lifted the hand lever to switch the gear to park and wanted to get out of my car to assess the damages. However, I was unable to do so, as the car door could not be opened. My colleague , Zora, who was in the front passenger seat and the van driver got out of the car and van respectively to take photos of the accident. After she took the photos, the third party driver of the black van which collided into my car , reversed his van , to see if that helps me open my driver seat car door. I tried opening the car door again, and this time, I could open the car door, although there's a crackling sound when I do so, due to the dent caused by the collision. I took more photos of the van vehicle number and company, exchanged contact details and drivers license information.

Upon assessing the superficial damage caused by the van colliding into my stationary car, I noticed serious scratches on my car, holes and dent on the side body, front bonnet and car door. I opened my driver seat car door to get into the drivers seat and noticed there's a loud sound when door is opening. Upon changing from parking to driving gear to move off from the accident scene, I noticed there's a lot of strange sounds from under the car, and my wheel sensors are also not detected. These issues were not present before the accident.

A thorough assessment of the internal engine system of the car is required to assess any other damage that is not visible to the naked eye.
